Railway Mail Service

This quarterly, published 1986, discusses the national and local heritage of the Railway Mail Service, which began in 1864. The purpose of the Railway Mail Service (RMS) was to sort mail en route, carrying it from one distribution place to another until the mail arrived to its final destination. The quarterly discusses the RMS organization, how an individual could become a railway mail clerk, maintaining employment in the RMS, the pay scale, the revenue for the railroads, and the wrecks, flood waters, robberies and personal memories made from working for the Railway Mail Service.
