

Rutland Historical Society

Vol. XV No. 2

The Carpatho-Rusyn Community

This quarterly focuses upon a group of people who originated from Eastern Europe and immigrated to the United States; Proctor, Vermont for a better life to overcome poverty. Paul Lengyel one of the people in this group expressed that the other people and himself had an interest in working for the Vermont Marble Company. Mr. Lengyel within the quarterly also shared that disputes amongst the Greek Catholic Church surfaced once he and the other people in his group began reading and understanding the bible for themselves. They realized that the traditions “differed greatly from God’s word,” and thus they made their own religious congregation.